NORTHERN NEW MEXICO COLLEGE has served the rural communities of Northern New Mexico for over a century. Since opening its doors in 1909 as the Spanish American Normal School in El Rito, the College has provided open admissions and affordable access to quality academic programs that meet the educational, economic and cultural needs of the region.

The College’s original mission and Constitutional charter makes Northern the first Hispanic-serving institution in the United States. Northern opened its Española campus in 1971 and expanded its mission to include technical vocational programs, eventually becoming the state’s first designated community college in 1977.

Now one of the state’s four regional comprehensive institutions, with its main campus in Española, NM, Northern offers more than 50 bachelor’s, associate, and certificate programs in arts & human sciences, film & digital media, biology and environmental science, business, education, engineering, liberal arts, radiation protection and nursing.

In addition, the College has reintroduced technical trades programs in electrical technology and plumbing, in partnership with two local unions and five public school districts through its co-located Branch Community College, the first of its kind in the state’s history.
